Co-Directors

In their eight years at Miss Hutchison's School, Dr. and Mrs. "A" have done a remarkable job. They have made many improvements in the school and have succeeded in winning the love, confidence, and respect of everyone connected with it. We, the students, owe them a great debt, for they have prepared us not only for college but for anything that our futures might hold. To please 380 girls is a trying task, but they have met each situation with open minds and have solved each problem with sound judgment.

The sleepy-eyed looks on Monday morning
... the gaiety of Fridays with two holidays before us ... the hectic day at the zoo with our flower girls ... the piles of books which we took home every night ... the endless meetings crammed into activity periods ...

the wonderful privilege of going out to lunch ... and most of all, the knowledge that we were finally seniors and there would never be another next year ... these are the things which will always remind us of our senior year.

ORGANIZATIONS AND ACTIVITIES

The LANTERN staff has been working for a year to produce this annual. Last June we drew up the first dummy, and in July we sent postcards to every girl in the high school, asking her to have her picture taken. In August we sent out more postcards, and in September we started making hundreds of announcements which continued into October. Finally in November we completed the class pictures.

Meanwhile, the staff was frantically writing copy and completing plans. It seemed we took enough pictures to fill three or four rooms . . . and then we took some more. Most of December, January, and February were spent in completing this task. Then came the last-minute rush and the fear that we had forgotten something. But the thrill of seeing the finished annual more than compensated for our time and effort. It is sponsored by Mrs. Fred Cochran.

THE SIGNPOST

The Signpost staff, headed by Editor Emily Smith and guided by Mrs. Fred Cochran, faculty advisor, produced six papers during the year. As a result of the combined talents of the special editors and the reporters, each edition of our paper was filled with varied items. Besides regular school news, announcements, and editorials, features such as a cartoon, a "Roving Reporter" and a fashion column, and "Dedicated to You" were included to enliven the paper and portray the true spirit of Hutchison.

One of the highlights of the year was the Commercial Appeal Journalism Clinic, which was held in October. Most of the staff members attended and gained valuable pointers from the panels. It also helped them to realize their great opportunity in learning the principles of journalism, and the many chances offered in this profession.

Other staff members discuss journalistic principles. Seated are Hilda Adams and Susan Hyde, reporters; Nelle Carter, feature editor; Margaret Said, reporter; Kate Martin, literary editor; and Joan Widman, reporter. Standing are Lynn Nebhut, reporter, and Axson Brown, sports editor.

Sallie, Eva Mae, and Margaret enjoy one of the delicious school lunches as they have a little buzz session.

The Hutchison Student Council has two major purposes: to uphold the ideals of the school constitution and to promote the indefinable Hutchison spirit. Its many and varied activities are all directed toward fulfilling these aims.

During the workshop, held in September, the school leaders made plans for 1954-55 and gave the new students a preview of the year.

The Student Council sponsored a successful party for the new girls, the charity projects at Thanksgiving and Christmas, and all the drives and campaigns during the year. A Student Council committee revised the constitution, especially the section on elections.

The Honor Study Periods, supervised entirely by the students, are a Student Council project. This is the first year that they have been used exclusively, and their success made us proud that we have enough self-control to maintain them.

Besides these major projects, Student Council representatives are in charge of such things as the bulletin board, the calendar, the point book, and the lunchroom.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

A typical Honor Study Period teaches students self-control and shows them the value of using time wisely.

Student Council representatives are Peggy Johnson, Frances Andrews, Lynda Lipscomb, Lawrence Cook, Barbara Smith, and Lela Hudson. Standing are Louisa Dunn and Axson Brown.

Jean, Susie, Emily, Shirley, and Gayle play an important role in Student Council affairs as ex-officio members.

The Student Council is composed of its three officers, the presidents of the four classes, two representatives from each class, and five ex-officio members. Meetings are held once a week, and all the council activities and plans are discussed. The representatives make suggestions from their classes and report the results of the meetings to their classmates.

Our Student Council has become an integral part of Hutchison, and each year it plays a more important role in school life.

To be chosen a member of the National Honor Society is one of the highest honors that can be awarded to a Hutchison girl. In the fall seniors are chosen, and juniors are tapped in the spring. This year the organization sponsored a talent show and a program to promote interest in art. The Honor Society is responsible for the invitations to the annual spring dance.

The varsity team (pictured above) constantly displayed an outstanding spirit which made us all very proud. Though St. Agnes and the Southwestern freshmen defeated us, we bounced back to score a victory over Lausanne. The game with Girls' Preparatory School from Chattanooga was lost after a hard fight. The team was enthusiastically supported by the entire school, and Dr. and Mrs. A. showed their interest by frequently attending practices.

Girls from the seventh and eighth grades played on the pigtail team (below). We won three games out of six in the league, defeating Lausanne once and Snowden twice. Lausanne beat us once, and East had two wins, one of them by a two point margin. Helen Pidgeon was the high scorer in the league, and Molly Cochran was an outstanding guard. Miss Beasley said, "The girls were very co-operative and interested, and some of them showed an exceptional amount of ability."

The cheerleaders helped to create spirit by pep rallies held in the study hall before games and by cheering at every game. Their enthusiasm inspired the team and spectators alike.

Every class had physical education at least once a week throughout the year. Our gym was given a new look by Coach Ruth Beasley, and the activities included basketball, softball, volleyball, soccer, badminton, and pingpong.

We also had modern dancing this year. Many groans were heard from girls who had done their exercises too strenuously, but we were glad to take off a few pounds and become a little more graceful. Mrs. Joye Thompson and Miss Dorothea Britt taught us many new things, and we thoroughly enjoyed their classes.

ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES

Cheerleaders Patsye Taylor, Marion Rychener, Mary Wallace Harton and Lynda Lipscomb lead a pep rally in the study hall before the GPS game.

FIELD DAY

Field Day was held this year in April. There was a basketball game, a softball game, a volleyball game, a relay race, hurdles, and the badminton and pingpong finals. Two girls from each grade sold candy or cokes or other refreshments at booths, and the grade with the most profit was allowed to keep half its proceeds. The rest of the money went to the Gym Fund.

May Queen

It has long been the tradition of Hutchison to present a pageant on May Day.

The theme of this year's festival was "The Nutcracker Suite." Each class represented a country and performed its dance before the queen, her attendants, and her court, which was composed of the senior class. A high fidelity system was set up, and the records which were used added greatly to the overall effect.

The May Festival was under the direction of Mrs. Joye Thompson, Miss Dorothea Britt, and Mrs. Mary Walton Glass.

The queen and her court are honored by dances presented by each grade.

GONE WITH THE SENIORS

"Save that Confederate money, y'all, the South's gonna rise again." This refrain has been echoed by many Southerners, never dreaming it would actually come true. However, the Second War Between the States began in 1961 when a small group of Southerners, led by the irrational Lieutenants Rychener and Davis, fired on Fort Knox.

Sarah Burch, a Northern sympathizer, was elected the first woman president, having done so well at Vassar. Immediately she issued the second Emancipation Proclamation, freeing the men at the University of the South (Sewanee) from their daily routine of strenuous studying. Her most heralded act was the appointment of Nelle Carter as commander-in-chief of the Federal forces. General Carter's chief adviser was Ann Morrison, who had been interested in the problems of the day since her completion of Current Affairs at Hutchison.

General Carter's plan of campaign was to gain control of the Mississippi River. Her first move was an attack on Mud Island, but the Yankee onslaught was checked by a squadron of rebels commanded by Majors Ingram and Spragins. Before the war, Yvonne had become the wife of a prominent young cotton man. Susie had been recently elected Dean of Men at the University of Arkansas.

The loss of men increased steadily and Emily Smith, editor of the Commercial Appeal, wrote her famous editorial, "OPEN YOUR HEARTS AND YOUR HOMES TO OUR MEN." Mary Cox, an example of Southern graciousness, was the first to answer the call and immediately opened her home to be used as a hospital. The Red Cross was doing its share, guided by Chairman Gayle Fayssoux. Gayle was splendidly assisted by Peggy Johnson, whose contributions of clothes and surgical dressings rose steadily. Peggy was supervisor of Mrs. McGee's famed sewing center.

Meanwhile, Jean Sanders was vigorously defending the Vandy SAE House. Vanderbilt University had been under constant enemy attack since the beginning of the war. Mary Wallace Harton, a graduate of Vanderbilt, left her West Memphis, Arkansas, home to aid Jean in the defense of their alma mater.

Margaret Said gave up her promising career as a baseball star to become chairman of the entertainment for the Confederate soldiers. She billed Elisabeth Bassett, Nancy Husselman, and Shirley Chandler for the next production at the Princess. They first gained local recognition by recording their arrangement of "Hearts of Stone" on the Hutchison label. During intermission, Betty Mapes and Alice Sprunt gave a lecture on their extensive European travels. As ambassadors to England, they had been urgently pleading for the Southern cause. The elaborate interior decorating in the theater was designed by Sharon Weatherall. Sharon, a promising young designer, married a modern-day Gene Krupa.

In another Southern city, a battle of words instead of weapons was waging. A debate between Carolyn Miller, a Yankee sympathizer, and Margaret Wellford, a loyal Confederate, was the center of attraction. While a student at Hutchison, Margaret had been recognized as an outstanding orator by her constant speeches in Student Council forums. Carolyn emphasized her beliefs by arguing from the psychological viewpoint, while Margaret enumerated the vast advantages of the South. The achievements of Marion Finley, a retired spy, were marvelled at by the awe-struck audience. Sandra Hall, a Northern correspondent, interviewed Finley to discover her technique. Finley replied bashfully, "It's all in getting the boys' mind off their work—You've either got it or you don't!"

Meanwhile, at the front, a new weapon, invented by Kate Martin and Stella Orgill, was being introduced. Stella and Kate have both made many valuable contributions to the scientific world. A sudden cloud of dust warned us that Peggy Walker and her famed cavalry regiment were nearing. The pitter-patter of little feet reminded us that Ann Bailey, a devoted chaplain, was administering last rites to the Confederate dead. Julia Gray, Ann's protegee, was noted for founding a Sunday night league for our soldiers.

Lawrence Cook, a beautiful Southern belle, entertained Governor Eva Mae Duncan with an elaborate ball. Governor Duncan hailed from North Carolina, where the governor's mansion was situated on the campus of Davidson College. The guests were fascinated by a somewhat alluring dance called the Widman bop. They were privileged to see the bop performed by the originator herself. Olivia High, the utmost in Southern society, was present, adorned in one of her original creations. A renowned artist, Millicent Ford, was laboriously sketching a portrait of Zelda Willey, who, even in 1961, arrived at the ball in her tomato-soup Mercury convertible. The versatile Millicent was invited not only to sketch but also to sing and play for the guests.

The gala event was suddenly interrupted by the late evening edition of the Commercial Appeal. The rebel yell was heard for miles around, and as we had always claimed—EVERY SOUTHERNER COULD LICK TEN YANKEES!
